BAXTER P.

The Kor coffee table, designed by Baxter P., is an exercise in proportions that challenges gravity. Characterized by a sculptural and balanced design, the piece plays on contrast, with a silhouette that gives the whole a surprising visual lightness. The base, made of polished antiqued steel, reflects light with a vibrant brilliance, creating a refined dialogue with the upper surface. Resting on this slender pedestal is a substantial stone top, selected for its unique veining and its tactile, solid presence. The combination of polished metal and the naturalness of stone transforms Kor into a furnishing element of great character, perfect for enhancing the center of a contemporary living space. It is a coffee table that does not merely complete the space, but defines it, offering a refined surface where measured elegance meets the pure strength of natural materials.
